3Hotel of Destiny

Whether you're stuck in Fife on business, tired of wading through I-5 traffic to hang in Seattle for the weekend, or just wondering how on earth Tacoma became known as the "City of Destiny," the Hotel Murano is your fix for chic surroundings, world-class art and a reason to spend the night.

The entire hotel is a dynamic exhibition of artisans, with a focus on glass artwork. In town on business? Skip the dreary chain hotels down the street—the Murano is geared toward clearing out the conference cobwebs and facilitating some serious team-building in the swinging bar/lounge area.

While you're exploring this gallery-gone-hotel, take advantage of some body work in Savi Day Spa. Famished from your belly rub? Bite restaurant will give you even more reason to keep it local, with truly excellent Pacific NW-inspired dishes. After a busy day of networking, some garlic-herb fries with mushroom-Zinfandel gravy and gorgonzola cheese in the Lobby Bar will clear your head, or hide out in your room with a movie and lobster corn dogs with wasabi ketchup. Either way, cancel that morning meeting.
